

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A safety device and method is provided for warning a person of the presence of a substantially transparent door or window. The safety device includes a short-range detector, which can be a motion detector that causes
5 activation of an audible alarm device that forms part of the safety device to warn a person of the presence of the door or window to thereby prevent an unwanted collision between the door or window and the person.